A 25-year RETROSPECTIVE

UNITED IN OUR DIVERSITY?

In April 1994, when about 22 million people queued to make their cross to declare a renewed political dispensation, the hope was that, as South Africans, we would celebrate our unity in our diversity. Almost 25 years later, has this sentiment remained intact given the social, economic and political crisis we face today as a result of still very unequal social and economic conditions and widespread corruption that seems to be eating away at the core of our public and private sectors?
